Publications Office' responsibility in Public Procurement

■ Publications Office Mandate:

Directive 24/2014/EU: Publication of public procurement notices in the Official Journal Supplement (OJ S)

Article 51

Form and manner of publication of notices

2. Notices referred to in Articles 48, 49 and 50 shall be drawn up, transmitted by electronic means to the Publications Office of the European Union and published in accordance with Annex VIII. Notices shall be published not later than five days after they are sent. The costs of publication of the notices by the Publications Office of the European Union shall be borne by the Union.

■ Publication process

- OJ S / TED - Tenders electronic daily
- XML version for registered users (bulk download; individual notice)

European public procurement legislation

The publication of procurement notices is regulated by:

- 4 European Directives on public procurement (general, utilities, concessions and defence)
 - Directive 2014/23/EU on concession contracts
 - Directive 2014/24/EU on public procurement
 - Directive 2014/25/EU on water, energy, transport and postal services

5. Notices are published in TED

How are procurement notices processed at OP?

When are procurement notices published?

After they are received at the Publications Office, notices are published:

- In 5 days if received in XML format from TED eSenders or via TED eNotices
 - Also procurement notices for accelerated procedures, corrections, additional information and cancellations
- In 12 days if received:
 - From the European institutions (full translation in all EU official languages)
 - By traditional means (post, fax and e-mail)

TED and eProcurement

- EU Directives on public procurement set the legal framework for a full eProcurement process
- Publications Office plays a key role with 2 modules:
 - eNotification: electronic notification and publication of a procurement procedure (eNotices, eSentool and TED)
 - eAccess: electronic access to procurement documents (TED-eTendering)
